FIRE ON WEST NINTH STREET

A barn belonging to the estate of the late Mr. Heald, of 806 W. Ninth street, burned down early Thursday morning. It was discovered by Miss Heald when she heard the sound of crackling flames. An alarm was immediately turned in, but the fire was already well under way, and by the time the fire engine arrived it was too far gone to be saved. An automobile belonging to Elmer Eye and Mr. Belmerberg of 883 S. Glendale Ave., which was stored in the barn, was also burned. The origin of the fire is unknown. The barn was insured for $200.00, which is one-half of its estimated value. There was no insurance on the automobile.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Entitled

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE, THE LIBERATOR OF MANKIND

BY JOHN RANDALL DUNN, C.S.

Member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, The The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

At Horne Hall, Burbank, under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Glendale. Mr. A. R. Killgore, First Reader of the Church, introduced the speaker.

The widespread interest in the subject of Christian Science, in this and other lands, is traceable directly to the fact that enslaved mortals are finding in its spiritual teaching that liberator graphically pictured by Isaiah as sent "to preach good tidings unto the meek;...to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound." The attempts of some misinformed critics to prove that Christian Science is not this liberator, that the sick are not healed, the sinning reformed, nor the sorrowing comforted through its ministrations, are of course of little moment in the presence of an ever increasing host of witnesses testifying to the fact that whereas they were bound physically, mentally, or morally, now they are experiencing through the teachings of Christian Politicians who promise nothing before election usually keep their promise. Those who do not promise anything do likewise. In that, there isn't any difference between the two kinds. There are other kinds but they are no different than the others.

ABOUT SPRING POEMS

With the flow of sap, sapiency and sarsaparilla that is due with the pussy willow and the first violet, we expect the annual inundation of spring poems on kind-faced cows, a young man's fancies and the tail of the bumblebee. We are therefore prepared to duck. To those who send us communications in rhyme, kindly address them to the "Nut Editor" and please have them packed in ice to prevent incubation enroute.

Efficiency means trading nearest to home.

BUSINESS FOLLOWS INDUSTRIES

Whether it is a big industrial corporation or a farmers co-operative industry, business of all kinds follows in the wake of payrolls.

If Tropico would concentrate its energies on securing payrolls and industrial enterprises there would be less empty store rooms. Communities need churches, schools, and lodges, but these do not supply payrolls. Seek ye first the kingdom of employment at good wages for men, women and young people and all these other things will be added. It is only through payrolls and transacting business that money is put in circulation where ordinary people get it. Those who live on public salaries, graft or by clipping coupons and collecting rents are a very small minority that does not spell prosperity. Ninety per cent of the population must live by working.

YOUR CHANCE

Quit worrying over lost opportunities and become alert to new ones.

You are going to have more chances to make good.

The old saying that opportunity knocks but once at your door is a fallacy.

Don't be so pernickety that you immediately begin to wonder if the quotation about "opportunity" was correctly quoted, and so lose sight of the lesson which it is sought to drive in.

From experience you know you have had already more than one chance to improve your present position.

Don't allow yourself to think the big chance is going to hunt you up.

Indeed, it will skip you a-flying if there is a disposition on your part to be sought, and then coaxed, and then implored.

Opportunity is looking for some one who is ready and waiting to grab it.

Don't lose a second in catching on to opportunity any more than you want to lose a beat of that wonderful music by making a false step in the dance you enjoy.

WITH THE SAGES

Pythagoras desired to be called not wise, like those who preceded him, but a lover of wisdom.—Quintillan.

The days are ever divine. They come and go like muffled and veiled figures; but they say nothing; and if we do not use the gifts they bring they carry them as silently away.—Emerson.

Obstinacy is will asserting itself without being able to justify itself. It is persistence without a reasonable motive. It is the tenacity of self-love substituted for that of reason and conscience.—Amiel.

Put oil on the wound and it will heal; be meek and the anger of thy brother will abate.—Parsee Bannerjee, 1798.

Born for a very brief space of time we regard this life as an inn which we are soon to quit that it may be ready for the coming guest.—Seneca.

Old age is the consummation of life, just as of a play from the fatigue of which we ought to escape, especially when satiety is super-added.—Acero.

MUCH IN LITTLE

Science a greater measure of health, freedom, and happiness than they have ever known.

What would those who fancy themselves opposed to this spiritual teaching have its students do? Would they ask the man who states, and whose family corroborates his statement, that he has been freed from the torments of alcholism, to go back to his appetite and his bondage? Would they bid the infidel who through Christian Science has become a believer in and lover of the Bible, discard that holy volume, and tread again his cheerless, godless road? Would they bring back the pain and anguish which in the cases of thousands of men and women and little children has been banished by the touch of this healing evangel? Surely this is no time to oppose the coming to saddened humanity of a spiritual message the certain effect of which is the uplift and comfort of mankind

THIS TRAGIC MOMENT IN HISTORY

We are without doubt living in one of the most tragic moments in history. On all sides are evidences of the most terrific upheavel the world has ever witnessed. Nation has risen against nation, wars and rumors of wars abound, desolation and disturbances of nature seem to prevail, and want, woe, and discord stalk abroad in the earth. What does it mean? How are we to stand? Christian Science gives the only rational explanation of this mighty world-wide fermentation. It tells us not to be dismayed, but to realize that as the mud in a river's bed must be stirred and brought to the surface in order to purify the stream (see Science and Health, p. 540), just so must the latent errors of the earth, national as well as individual, be brought to the surface and carried off, in order that the kingdoms of this world may become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ.

PATRIOTISM AND GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, has said (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany) that Christian Science "stands for the inalienable, universal rights of men. Essentially democratic, its government is administered by the common consent of the governed, wherein and whereby man governed by his creator is self-governed" (p. 254). She has also stated as an article of her political faith that she believes in supporting a righteous government (see p. 276). And in yet another place she writes, "If our nation's rights or honor were seized, every citizen would be a soldier and woman would be armed with power girt for the hour" (p. 277). Thus it will be found that the great majority of alert students of Christian Science are endeavoring to be good citizens, and loyal upholders of every good and righteous cause. If a student of Christian Science believes that he is not a loyal supporter of this great government, it is without doubt because he has not as yet realized that if he is loyal to the ideals of Christian Science he cannot help being loyal to the ideals of America, for try as he may, he cannot divorce the two. The very corner stone of this nation may be said to be a statement of scientific Christianity; in fact, the coming of Christian Science with its message of complete liberation was foreshadowed in the Declaration of Independence, when it was written: "We hold these truths to be self- evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness."

THE WORK OF THE MONITOR

The Christian Science Monitor, the international daily newspaper published by The Christian Science Publishing Society, is conceded even by many non-Scientists to be one of the great forces for righteousness in human affairs to-day. Its object, Mrs. Eddy has stated, "is to injure no man, but to bless all mankind" (Miscellany, p. 353), and it is ever the champion of lofty patriotism, good government, and high civic ideals. It is doing more to awaken humanity to a clear metaphysical view of earth's problems than any other news journal on the globe. It is bringing to the very doorstep of the reader's heart the problems, the hopes, the trials, and the achievements of his brethren over-seas and over-continents. In other words, as it has been well said, the Monitor is teaching mortals "to think in hemispheres." Thus it is laying a sure foundation for a truer cooperation and lasting fellowship among men and nations; and when the smoke of this great confiict lifts, the Christian Scientists in all parts of the world will be found offering a cup of cold water in Christ's name, as they have been offering it for the past generation to the receptive thought, healing the sick, comforting the sorrowing, and wiping out unhappy memories, enmities, and hates.

ABOUT OUR TRAFFIC LAWS

Auto Dealers and Supply Station Men Meet With City Fathers

Upon invitation of the Board of Trustees a large number of those engaged in the automobile business, and also those operating service stations, were present at the City Hall Monday evening. President Thompson stated to those present that the object of the meeting was to bring about a thorough understanding between the city authorities and those who met the public as dealers in regard to the policy of the city with reference to the enforcement of the motor vehicle laws of the state and ordinances of the City.

Mr. Thompson stated that the city officials naturally heard more from the people who are protesting against the fast and reckless driving upon our streets than the dealers did; on the other hand, the dealers, no doubt, heard more from those who had been arrested for violating the law, and who might feel in some instances that they had not been fairly treated by the authorities. Therefore, it was quite essential that a thorough understanding in regard to these matters be reached between the city officials and the dealers. The City officials believe that if the dealers thoroughly understood the city's policy in this matter and cooperated with the city, that good results would be obtained.

President Thompson stated that a few years ago when each of the similar cities of our state were permitted to enforce motor vehicle laws of their own choosing, great injustice

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU FOR SCHOOL

Miss Flood to Start Active Campaign

Have you any time to sell? If you have apply to your Employment Bureau. All you need to do is to fill out a blank stating the hours you have free and the kind of service you can render. These blanks may be obtained either from Miss Flood or Mr. Sawyer. At present we have more calls for student help than we have students to fill the places. If we expect to get more calls we must show the community that we are prepared to supply the service needed. We want people to get the habit of saying, "Oh, try the High School Employment Bureau; they will be able to send you someone." At present we have three calls for a girl to work for room and board; two of these places offer a small salary in addition. No girl has appeared for these positions. Perhaps you know some girl not in school who could come to school if she had one of these positions. You see, you can use the Bureau not only for yourself but for your friends also. If you know of such a girl tell her of the position and make an appointment for her to see Miss Flood. Or, you may know people who want help with extra work; tell them of the Employment Bureau and that they may place their call for work with Miss Flood, who is handling the girls' positions, or Mr. Sawyer who is handling the boys'. Never were there more demands for money than now. Every student wants to enter largely into the school life; he wants to have a part in all its various activities. With most it is a choice of earning and being in things or staying out. Let the Employment Bureau help you to be in things.—Explosion.

U. for sweaters and other donations. One was from Frank J. Sullivan, Maj. Sig. R. C., the other from Kenneth McKim, First Lieut. Sig. R. C.

The W. C. T. U. is planning a big war drive in which they hope to raise thirty thousand dollars in Southern California, all of which will be used for the benefit of our boys.

DON DANNER TAKES LAURELS

At a recent gathering of Boy Scouts from all over the county for the organizing of a fife and drum corps, an examination was held which required the boys to play "John Brown's Body" and Don Danner of 331 Gardena avenue, was the only boy who was able to meet the requirements.

RED CROSS MEETING

The open meeting of the Red Cross, Thursday evening, at the City Hall, was a very interesting one. Mr. John Brown, who was on the front for two years, gave a talk on his experiences in the war zone. Mr. Parker, who will leave soon to take up Y. M. C. A. work in the Army, spoke on the causes of war. Both speakers were very good, in fact too good for the small crowd that turned out to hear them. It must be rather discouraging to the workers of the Red Cross to get good speakers out here and have small audiences.

LESTER L. MEYER PROMOTED

Popular Glendale Boy Gets Commission of Lieutenant

A short time ago Lester L. Meyer, son of A. Meyer, the Overland man in Glendale, was in the business of selling the best car on the market for the price, as Les put it, and he sold them too. The war was declared and Lester wanted to go. He decided that the aviation offered the best and it gave a man a chance to go some if he got in. When he took his examination he was passed, and in a very short time found himself in Berkeley studying "his head off" as he said. After passing the examinations at that place with a high mark he was sent to San Diego to really learn to fly. He did. The work was interesting and it appealed to him in every way right from the start. He was careful and honest in what was told him to do—and the results are now to be seen—for he has secured the coveted honor of being a Lieutenant for Uncle Sam.

He is on a furlough for a short time and will return to San Diego when the time is up. He expects to leave there however, but does not know where to.

The Local Red Cross reports that the money received in memberships and donations now totals $1,278.25. This amount makes a good showing as compared with any other city of the same population as Tropico.

NEW SHOE STORE

C. C. Widney, formerly with the Horton Shoe Company in Glendale, will open an exclusive women-s shoe store at 1114 West Broadway, where the Bookery has been located, on the first of February. The store will open with a ninety day sale.

The Local Red Cross has up to date completed 580 Hospital garments and 200 knitted garments, which includes 100 pairs of socks. These have all been forwarded to headquarters for distribution, except those that have been furnished local boys who are in the service.

The pool hall on Tropico Avenue near the San Fernando Road has been closed since consolidation arrangements have been completed. Mr. Monoit, the proprietor, is considering the advisibility of petitioning the council for permission to re-open his establishment.

The Word "Tartan."

The Scottish word "tartan" is supposed to have been taken from the Spanish and French "tire taine." In Spanish this means something thin and flimsy, from "taritar," to shiver with the cold. In French the term "tire taine" is applied to the mingled fibers of linen and wool, which is called sometimes linsey woolsey.

PROCEEDINGS OE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Maria L. Patterson, requesting a refund of taxes paid by a soldier's widow under misunderstanding. The communication was accompanied by tax receipts. On motion of Trustee Muhleman, the communication was referred to the City Manager to consult with the Tax Collector and report upon the same.

At 8:20 P. M. protests were called for in regard to the improvement of a portion of Milford Street. A protest filed on January 3rd signed by Lillian J. Empey and eight other property owners whose property is subject to assessment for the said improvement, was presented to the Board and read by the Clerk. On motion of Trustee Woodberry, the time for hearing of protests against the acceptance of the work of a portion of Milford Street was set for Thursday, January 31st at 8:30 P. M.

The report of the Tax Collector for the week ending January 24th was presented and read, and on motion ordered to be received and filed.

The City Manager reported in regard to the renumbering of Tropico election precincts, reading a letter received from Supervisor Dodge in reply to one calling his attention to the matter, stating that the changes had been made as requested.

The City Manager reported as having written to the Manager of the Southren Pacific Railway Company in regard to the renaming of Tropico station; but no answer had been received.

The Chairman made a statement in regard to complaints received as to the confusion resulting from the consolidation of Tropico and Glendale, in regard to mail delivery. The City Clerk also stated that inquiries in regard to the matter had been made by telephone, and in such cases, citizens had been informed that the consolidation of the two cities had not as yet resulted in any action by the Post Office Department, and that at present mail should be addressed as heretofore. The matter was referred to the City Manager.

The City Manager stated in regard to renumbering streets, that it is absolutely necessary that new maps of the enlarged city be prepared before satisfactory action can be taken.

The City Engineer stated that in order to furnish the maps required, it would be necessary to have new negotiations made, which would answer the purpose of the City Assessor as well as that of the Lot Cleaning Department and the furnishing of street numbers; that the probable cost of the work would be in the neighborhood of $200.00. On motion of Trustee Woodberry, seconded by Trustee Grist, the City Engineer was instructed to prepare such maps; by the following roll call.

AYES: Grist, Jackson, Muhleman, Thompson, Woodberry.

NOES: None.

The Manager of the Public Service Department stated that his statement made at the last meeting of the Board showing that there was $260.00 in Ornamental Street Lighting Fund No. 9, which he requested be transferred to the Public Service Fund, was an error, and that the order for transfer should be that the sum of $260.00 be transferred from Ornamental Street Lighting Fund No. 9 to the Public Service Fund as the money comes in. On motion of Trustee Grist, it was ordered that action in reference to this transfer made at the last regular meeting, be rescinded, and that the sum of $260.00 be transferred as that sum accumulates; by the following roll call

AYES: Grist, Jackson, Muhleman, Thompson, Woodberry.

NOES: None.

The City Attorney reported having seen Mr. Van Etten and reported to him the action of the Board taken at the last regular meeting in reference to the case of Daisy Mason vs. the City of Tropico, and that Mr. Van Etten and himself had agreed to look after the case jointly. He stated that it would be necessary to have a map made showing location of a certain culvert with a cross section showing the curve of the street at that point. On motion of Trustee Muhleman, the City Engineer was instructed to prepare a map for this case as requested by the City Attorney.

The City Attorney reported that Mr. Babcock had offered to attempt to sell the $17,000.00 issue of Fire apparatus bonds at par, provided that he be given the exclusive right to do so for one week.

In regard to the conditions at Mr. Woodhill's place in Verdugo Canon, the City Attorney reported that he had looked into the matter in connection with the Health Officer and Manager of the Public Service Department, all of whom agreed that the conditions are bad from a sanitary standpoint. He read a copy of a letter which he had written to Mr. Woodhill, to which a reply had been received, stating that the writer desired to comply with the City regulations in the matter, but had been assured by the mechanic constructing the cesspool in question, that it could not possibly contaminate the waters of the stream on account of the distance of it's location from the water supply.

On motion of Trustee Grist, Ordinance No. 321, "An Ordinance of the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale changing and establishing the grade on a portion of Broadway in said city," was taken up for third and final reading, and upon being read, was on motion, adopted; by the following vote

AYES: Grist, Jackson, Muhleman, Thompson, Woodberry.

NOES: None.

The Chairman submitted a written report of the meeting held on Monday evening last with citizens engaged in the automobile business and those operating service stations, and that in his opinion, the same would be productive of good results, as some valuable suggestions had been made and steps taken to comply with them, and that altogether a spirit of harmony prevailed. Upon the report being read, it was, on motion of Trustee Grist, ordered to be received and filed.

Wanted: A Dumb Woman

By Mona Cowles

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Wanted—A stenographer who is dumb but not deaf; must be over thirty. No others need apply. Call Monday morning at Congressman Pragg's office at the Davenporte."

Perhaps the single affliction of being dumb without being deaf is not a rare one, but in Washington on the Sunday that this advertisement appeared in the local papers, women so handicapped were not numerous. Or, if they were, they were not stenographers in search of a job. Of the half-dozen dumb applicants, there was one whose hearing was keen enough and whose stenography was good enough to justify the congressman's young-man secretary—who sized them up when they came to the office—in referring her to the congressman himself. That was Mardy Mapes, and she was not entirely what the congressman had asked for in the advertisement. She admitted to the secretary in writing, on the small tablet of paper that she carried around with her, that she was under thirty, and anyone could have told at a glance that she wasn't even twenty-five. "However," she wrote to the congressman when he objected to her on the score of extreme youthfulness: "I am old in my ways and I can look much older if I dress in plain dark clothes."

The congressman frowned a little at her to show his disapproval, but consoled himself with the thought that if he kept her in his employ long enough, she would eventually reach a suitable age. On general principles, it seemed, Congressman Pragg had an objection to young women. Some people whispered that this was because of some early disappointment in love, but those who knew him better knew that in the congressman's uphill climb from a poor farmer's boy to the leading man of his state, there had been no time for flirtation or love-making.

"You may consider yourself employed," said the congressman, and the smile that came over Mardy's face showed that she heard perfectly in spite of her total dumbness. "Now, I want to explain why I wanted a dumb stenographer. I have had several women in my employ—good stenographers they were, too—but they drove me almost crazy with their innocent babbling. When they weren't chatting with my secretary out there, they were talking over the telephone to the girl downstairs at the switchboard or arranging with the people at suffrage headquarters to make street-corner speeches on such and such a night. And after hours they babbled to their friends all my business, or tried to retail inside political information to their soap-box audiences. Washington is nothing but a village in lots of ways, and people soon get to know that Miss So-and-So is working for Congressman Thus-and-So, and the first thing I'd know people would be telling me over at the capitol more about my own business than I knew myself. These women didn't do it maliciously, you understand, but they were so fond of hearing themselves speak that they couldn't help it. That is why I wanted a dumb stenographer. Your youthfulness is against you, but I don't suppose I can do any better—never mind the references—you look honest, and my secretary says your stenography is more than fair. Report here tomorrow morning at half-past nine."

Although the ambitious young man from the congressman's home town had the distinction of being his secretary, Miss Mapes soon did practically all the work that is usually connected with that post, and the young man in question occupied his time largely with meeting the congressman's callers, mixing with people whom the congressman might find it useful to know, in hotel lobbies, clubrooms or wherever he might contrive to find them, and making hurried trips back and forth from various of the congressman's constituents to Washington.

Mardy Mapes seemed not to have a responsibility or tie in the world—at least in Washington—outside of the congressman's office. She boarded somewhere over in the northeast—an indefinite section so far as the congressman was concerned, and "trolled" back and forth from there to the congressman's office in the hotel, where he lived, near the White House. She never worked "overtime," because all her time, presumably, was possible office time. And if she stayed in the congressman's office till midnight taking down notes for an important speech that he was to deliver, or listening critically to him as he rehearsed such a speech to her, tongues in the hotel never wagged to her discredit because of it. Perhaps this was because poor Mardy's own tongue itself was incapable of wagging. She was pretty and she was young, but her dumbness and her very somber and demure mode of dressing were a protection against slander or less malicious gossip.

More than if Mardy had expressed herself in words, did the congressman make a habit of studying her face, and before many months had passed there was need for very little tablet writing in their conversation. He could detect in the most minute variation of expression her meaning, and this constant studying of her face came to be as much a pleasure to him as anything else that made up his busy days.

Then, as spring came on, the congressman became more than ordinarily pensive. Even at the capitol it was commented on that Pragg had some cause to worry, and Mardy's most inquiring and sympathetic look of entreaty did not draw his secret from his lips.

One day when Mardy arrived in the morning, she found the congressman already at his desk—something entirely unprecedented—and Mardy seemed to know when she first caught his glance, that at last the time had come for her to know his secret care.

"I have something to tell you," he began, abruptly, not looking at her—though he usually studied her face with such keen interest. "I have secured the services of one of the greatest of throat specialists—Doctor Spiggenheim—perhaps you have heard of him. He is coming down to Washington as a special concession. He'll be here this morning. I want him to examine your vocal cords, and see if something cannot be done for them. He says it is a marvelous case—that your dumbness hasn't affected your hearing or any of your other senses."

Had the congressman been watching Mardy's face then he might have seen that she started and then turned perceptibly paler. She made no written reply or acknowledgment of her gratitude to her would-be benefactor, and they were both uncommunicative for the rest of the morning.

At Mardy's written request she saw the great specialist alone, and then the specialist saw the congressman alone, and then the congressman, having handed the specialist his thousand-dollar fee, saw Mardy alone.

The congressman looked pensive and grave. Very tenderly and, trying to conceal his own disappointment, he told Mardy of the specialist's verdict —that, strangely enough, Mardy's speechlessness was incurable. This time the congressman studied Mardy's face, but it showed nothing save a studied immobility.

They both tried to go back to the work of the day, but unsuccessfully, and then the congressman broke the silence. "I'll have to tell you what is worrying me—and torturing me," he said. "I'll tell you, and then you can decide what we ought to do. Mardy, I want to marry you. I had never thought of marrying before, and I don't want to make you my wife unless it is going to make you happier. I am tortured with the doubt whether your infirmity wouldn't be such a handicap in your life as my wife, with all the social duties that it would be bound to bring you, that we would both be unhappy because of it. I had hoped Spiggenheim would be able to hold out hope, but he tells me there is none. Mardy, what shall I do?"

There was a short pause, and then, in a soft, low voice, Mardy answered his question. "Forgive me." Then she went on talking rapidly and fluently, and the congressman hung upon each word as if hearing a woman talk had always been the joy of his life. "I came to Washington, hoping to get a position in one of the departments, but others more influential crowded me out. Then I saw your advertisement. My funds were exhausted, and I couldn't go home and tell the family I had lost out. I had promised to send home part of my salary—and—well, I pretended I was dumb, and everyone in Washington thinks I am. I have never spoken to anyone, though I do talk to myself in my room at night, so's not to forget how. Then when you spoke of Spiggenheim, I thought you suspected me, and would despise me for the deception and would dismiss me if you thought I really could talk. So—well, I told Spiggenheim the truth and promised him a hundred dollars—all my savings—if he would tell you the case was hopeless."

The congressman sat back in his chair and let out a hearty laugh that showed his melancholy had been forever dispelled, and for the first time he heard the contagious tones of Mardy's laugh, which she had been suppressing for months.

"One thousand, one hundred dollars," he reflected; "well it was worth that ten times over—and a hundred times over, if I had it. I never thought that it would take a throat specialist to cure me of a life-long melancholy—for, Mardy, I have never been completely happy in my life until this minute."

ABOUT TRAFFIC LAWS IN GLENDALE

was done the motor vehicle traffic, and a great many of the cities enforced unreasonable traffic laws for revenue only. While the City of Glendale had never taken any part in this movement but had always maintained a liberal policy toward the automobile traveler; nevertheless as a city, we were glad to operate under general state law as provided at present.

The Motor Vehicle Act as now in force applies to all cities of the sixth class as well as the unincorporated territory of the Counties throughout the State; that law provides a general speed limit of thirty miles for the highways and boulevards of the State. It also provides that cities may reduce that speed limit within certain districts by local ordinance, but prescribes the specific speed limit which may be enforced, viz: in closely built up residence districts, twenty miles per hour and in certain designated business districts, fifteen miles per hour.

The City of Glendale has taken action under the provisions of State law to create a business district, including that portion of Brand Boulevard from between the North line of Second Street to the South line of Colorado Street, and that portion of Broadway between the West line of Central Avenue and a short distance beyond Glendale Avenue; also one block on Glendale Avenue between Broadway and Third Street. The question of what the speed limit shall be within this district is not for the City of Glendale to say, as the State Law says it shall be fifteen miles per hour.

The City of Glendale also acting under the provisions of the State Law has prescribed a closely built up resident district, which includes practically all the resident streets of our city. The State Law says that the speed limit within this district shall be twenty miles per hour. The City of Glendale has placed signs at the boundaries of each of these districts stating what the speed limit is as required by State Law.

A number of those present felt as tho the speed limit for these districts as prescribed by State Law was lower than necessary, and that the city would necessarily have to pursue a liberal policy in their enforcement. A list of over sixty arrests which have been made by the traffic officer, indicated that no arrest had been made where the speed was less than twenty-four miles an hour, and in most instances it was considerable more

There was a desire expressed by the dealers that efforts be made to educate the public, first as to what the laws and regulations are, and second as to the necessity of compliance with these laws. It was suggested that a card or small folder be prepared setting forth clearly the main points of the traffic laws, which the auto driver should observe. It was also suggested that these cards or folders be furnished the dealers and those who are interested in the enforcement of the traffic laws, and that the dealers may supply their patrons with them. It was also suggested that small cards setting forth the main points in the traffic law be supplied the police officers and others, and from time to time the same be placed in autos parked within the business district. The dealers expressed a willingness to display in their places of business a sign or a large card prepared by the City, which would call the public's attention to the motor vehicle laws, and the necessity of their enforcement.

Another suggestion was made that large signs be placed at the city limits similar to those in use by a number of cities along the Foot Hill Boulevard in the San Gabriel Valley, welcoming the autoists to our city and requesting that a reasonable speed be maintained.

A splendid good spirit prevailed throughout the meeting and those present, by a rising vote, unanimously agreed to cooperate with the City in all these matters. President Thompson thanked the dealers for their presence and interest, and stated that the valuable suggestions made would be considered and steps taken to comply with the same at the earliest possible moment, and invited the dealers to make such further suggestions as may come to their mind from time to time, assuring them that due consideration would be given these suggestions at all times

TRAINING WITH A GAS MASK

The following description of how the soldiers train for a gas attack is contained in a letter from Dr. J. W. Bardill, of this city, now at Camp Fremont, which was written to his uncle, J. Crouse Barr, of Casa Verdugo, and will interest our readers:

"We officers have been having gas lectures and gas drill. We have been issued a gas mask. The mask consists of a rubber face piece with two goggles in it. There is a clamp to pinch your nose so that you cannot breathe through your nose. Then there is a rubber mouth piece attached to the hose which connects with a tin box about 8x3 inches which is supported in a canvas case hung from your neck. This tube has a valve in it so that all the air you breathe comes through the can filled with chemicals which removes the gases. We have to be able to put this mask on in six seconds.

"After we had about a dozen lectures we were lined up (about 50 of us), we put on our masks and marched about half a mile up to the gas house. When the mask is on, your nose is held closed and you have to breathe through the tube in your mouth. It is pretty hard to do, and especially march with it on in double quick time.

"The gas house is a large sealed room into which they have the poisonous gases flowing from tanks. It is so thick one can see it. We went into this room and remained fifteen minutes, receiving instructions how to give orders with the mask on. I could not detect a bit of gas through the mask and suffered no discomfort."
